Farm Bureau News

There have been numerous requests regarding the treatment for weevil and moths in cow pea seed to go into storage.

The best thing to use is carbon disulphide. Put the peas in a tight barrel and on each barrel throw about 2 ounces of carbon disulphide. Cover the barrels with sacks or tarpaulin. Examine at intervals of a month to see that no new infestation occurs. During the cold weather there is much danger of this.

Last Friday evening at the Sisco Chapel meeting it was decided to organize a regular community club and hold meetings with a program each time. Mr. Ben Sisco was elected President; J. Floyd V. President and Bob Allen Secretary. A number of very interesting talks were given at the meeting by the good people present. Facts and figures given by local dairy men furnished food for thought to those interested in obtaining a steady farm income.

Ensilage

Corn placed in a silo in a dry condition is more apt to spoil than that which contains a great deal of moisture according to farm specialists who say that it is absolutely impossible to get silage too wet.

Have the silage cutter ready some time before the process is to begin. Sufficient attention should be given to the silo itself to insure all the doors being in place and in good repair. If doors do not fit in certain places this can be repaired by tacking felt along the edges. It is sometimes possible to seal cracks around doors by sealing them with wet clay after the silo has been filled. If the corn is placed in a stave silo care should be taken to see that all the hoops are tightened and tightened.

Corn should be cut for silage when it is fairly mature this condition being present when the dent varieties when the kernels are dented and the lower leaves of the stalk broken. The digestible nutrients or the feeding value of the corn increases as the crop nears maturity and for this reason it should not be cut too soon. The corn may be chopped from one-fourth inch to one inch with one-half inch as a good width. The chopped corn should be thoroughly tramped as the silo is being filled as much attention being given the center as the outside to prevent uneven settling. At the Ky. Experiment Station, Farm Silage is kept from spoiling by wetting it thoroughly just after filling is completed and then having a man tramp it for one hour on seven consecutive days.

Hogging Down Cows

With indications pointing toward a low price for corn and a fair price for hogs during the coming fall, Ky. farmers can market their corn and produce pork in no better way than by turning hogs into their corn fields to hog off the crop.

Experiments conducted by the station show that tankage fed in a self feeder as a supplement to corn made the best combination for hogging off purposes. This method resulted in an average daily gain of 1.5 pounds.

Corn and soy beans grown together and hogged off also make a good combination, this system of feeding resulted in an average daily gain of a little more than one pound on all animals in the lot.

For hogging off use hogs weighing about 100 pounds. If smaller they are unable to get the corn down and larger animals do not make such economical gains. Start hogging down corn and soy beans about the time the beans are in the dough stage putting enough animals in the field to clean up the corn in about 35 or 40 days. When corn alone is used turn in as soon as the grain has passed the glazed stage.

Orchardists, don't fail to attend the annual meeting of the Henderson county Fruit Growers Association in conjunction with the Horticultural Society of Henderson, Ky., September 8th and 9th. You who are interested in apple growing could not spend a more profitable two days than at this meeting. See the program at the Farm Bureau Office.

Mr. E. Champion has a lime crushing outfit in operation at Mr. Fred Clements this week. It is producing excellent agricultural limestone.

WONDERFUL TRIP

W. B. Yates and party reports a wonderful trip to Mammoth Cave, there was a notice in the Press last week but this week is quite different in that the trip is now history.

I came home from Camp Sycamore, Mount Vernon, Ohio, where we had a most wonderful camp meeting, twenty six hundred people camped on the grounds beside the multitude that came from the surrounding country. I left Sycamore Sunday night came by Chicago and Evansville, arriving in Marion Tuesday at 10:20 A. M. and found the home folks and some neighbors ready for the trip to the cave. To say I was tired and worn and hungry would be putting it mildly, but since the trip had been planned I could not afford to throw a chunk in the wheel so at about three o'clock Tuesday afternoon we made the start for the cave. My family, Miss Eva and William and Cora and L. and Imogene Clark, George and William Harold and Trice Yates, Eugene Guess and Mrs. L. E. Guess and Marie Guess, T. R. Yates and his wife and daughter joined us at Hopkinsville where we had our first experience in camping out under the stars. Wednesday morning we pulled out bright and early thru the rain and pulled thru the rain and mud and water until noon we were at Franklin where the sun shone out nice and bright, and the pike from Franklin to Bowling Green made a fine and lasting impression on our party.

We reeled into the camping ground at the Cave about eight o'clock Wednesday night and soon our tent up and bedding down and were dead to the world until daylight Thursday morning when the pigs began to grunt and the dogs began to growl and the early birds to sing. We made our coffee and believe me we made it good and strong. There is nothing so good when on a camping trip as coffee and breakfast bacon and fried eggs so we had an abundance of all of that; we had chicken and pie and cakes galore and preserves and jelly and all the rest of it with several big water melons on the side.

At nine o'clock we had our pictures taken at the entrance of the cave and were soon lost to the outside world. It was one jolly bunch of fifty in our party, we went thru all of number 1 and part of number two and number four. Those who have been through know about what we saw and those who have never been through can never know unless you make the trip. It is wonderful beyond description and the power of tongue to tell. After we made the rounds and came out and had our lunch we went to the great Onyx Cave only four miles up the river from the Mammoth Cave and found the most beautiful things my eyes have ever seen, while it is new and unknown it is wonderful and will no doubt rival the mammoth cave in a short time. Don't fail to see the Onyx cave when at the Mammoth Cave.

We made the trip all safe and sound without any serious trouble, very few breaks or punctures along the way for which we were all very thankful. Maybe someone would like to know the distance from here there and back. It measured three hundred and fifty nine miles. We are all home now and happy that we went but don't say any of us want to go again soon. Eva and I will start for Council Bluffs, Iowa Thursday morning.

POLICE COURT BECOMES ACTIVE

For the past few days the City Police Court has been extremely active in picking up breakers of the automobile light law. Seven people have already been fined and according to the City Attorney, four more warrants have been issued that have not yet been tried.

Those who have been fined to date are: Andrew Eskew, Press Hill, A. Murphy, Crawford Clark, and Willis Glore, all of Marion. However Marion people are not the only ones subject to the wrath of the law, Zel Bennett of Paducah was fined Wednesday morning and Wm. Binkley of Crayne was one of the first to be picked up. All of the offenders to date have plead guilty and a uniform fine has been assessed on each, that of $5.00 and costs which brings the amount up to $8.00.

Ellis Cline was fined $2.50 and costs on a charge of drunkenness Aug. 25. Wm. Franklin was fined the same amount on the same offense. Both plead guilty.

Complaints by influential citizens are alleged to be the cause of the number of arrests of the motorists.

NEW CREAMERY

R. F. Wheeler, well known grocery man of this city has just completed arrangements whereby he is going to take the agency for the Sugar Creek Cash Cream Buying Co., and wants you to know that he will buy cream from the farmers twice every week.

Mr. Wheeler has always been in the cream business until he had the fire and now since he has rebuilt his store, he has looked the field over to see what company would be most suitable for the farmers in this vicinity and he has decided on the Sugar Creek Creamery Company. Sugar Creek is a concern which operates 5 plants and over eight hundred buying stations, distributed throughout the states of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee. It is a company that has grown from one of the smallest to be considered the largest in the field.

Their methods that they employ through their cream stations has met with the approval of thousands of farmers and is the reason they are so popular. Mr. Wheeler wants it understood that cream will be bought twice a week and that small amounts will receive the same attention that large ones do and he will welcome your business and see to it that you will be served in such a manner you will be pleased.
